NEHEMIAH UNDER CONSTRUCTION JUST A FEW NOTES NOW WILL FINISH IF THE LORD WILLS

The words of Nehemiah the son of Hachabiah. Now it happened in the month Chislev, in the twentieth year, while I was in Susa the capital,

The book opens by identifying its author/narrator. Nehemiah dates the events by the Persian calendar ("month of Chislev," roughly Nov–Dec) and by "the twentieth year" (of King Artaxerxes, per v.1 in context with 2:1), showing this is history rooted in real time and place. He's in "Susa the citadel," the Persian royal capital — meaning Nehemiah is a Jew living in exile, likely serving in the Persian court.

Brian Bell - Originally Nehemiah was a part of Ezra in the Hebrew bible. The story continues.

The Returns:

1. Trip #1 49,897 people return [Zerubbabel leads, 538bc] [purpose rebuild temple]
2. Trip #2 1,754 return [Ezra is in] (80 yrs. later) [purpose to rebuild the people]
3. Trip #3 Nehemiah leads (14 yrs. later) [purpose to rebuild the wall]

The Book Outline:Nehemiah can be broken up:

Nehemiah 1-6 The Physical Construction of the Wall around Jerusalem.

Nehemiah 7-13 The Spiritual Restoration of the People.

Another way of looking at it is: Neh 1:1-2:10 Cupbearer. Neh 2:11-Neh 6 Foreman. Neh 7-13 Governor. 3 roles...1 man...1 heart for God.

NEHEMIAH's QUESTION (Neh 1:1-3)

The setting (1) Was in Sushan/Susa the winter capitol of Persia (E. of Babylon 200 mi.). This is also the setting for Esther just a few years earlier.

The Man: What do you know about this man...How do you picture him...Maybe you picture him wearing a construction hat? Nehemiah = Comfort of Yahweh. He was born in captivity over in Babylon. He was a Jewish Patriot & Persian Statesman.

He was a Cupbearer (vs.11)

The Egyptians, Persians, Assyrians, & even some Jewish Monarchs had cupbearers. (Solomon did)

1 Kings 10:4,5 And when the queen of Sheba had seen all the wisdom of Solomon, the house that he had built, the food on his table, the seating of his servants, the service of his waiters and their apparel, his cupbearers, and his entryway by which he went up to the house of the LORD, there was no more spirit in her.

Why is this such an off-handed mention of his occupation? Humility? The apocryphal book of Tobit (1:22), which comes from the Persian period, speaks of one cupbearer as, The signet, administrator & treasurer under Sennacherib. In the ancient world the cupbearer was an influential official w/direct & constant access to the king. Not only in the king's presence but had a relationship of familiarity. What does the cupbearer do? (Drinks the king's cup to check for poison) Remember the Butler & the Baker in Gen.40 w/ Joseph? Then he restored the chief butler to his butler-ship again, and he placed the cup in Pharaoh's hand. Gen.40:21 Was this an important job? You bet your king's life it was! Literally the king's life was completely in his hand (or in his plate). I see Nehemiah's life as a total life of sacrifice every time he took a drink. But Nehemiah in his humility has to tell us what he did for a living so the next chapter makes sense in his talking to the king. (Neh 2:1,2)

We are often called to be cupbearers or as McManus says, we're called to be mushroom eaters. (asking, why did that 1st guy eat that 1st mushroom, sea cucumber, raw oyster, or jellyfish?) Were they hungry? Starving? trapped at sea long enough? It's putting a value to risk & sacrifice. It's living courageous lives. McManus said, John the Baptist was mushroom eater, and it cost him his life. Jesus, too, was a mushroom eater, and he found himself nailed to a tree. Neither Man saw his 35th birthday. Both of them point to the barbarian way. [The Barbarian Way, pg. 53]

Nehemiah is about to give up a life as a wealthy official to build a wall. He will leave the most beautiful city in the known world to move to a city that had been in ruins for many years. He leaves the protection from the most powerful city to move to a city that is no longer powerful. He was willing to sacrifice his own comfort to serve God & His people. Nehemiah was like Christ then in that they both...left a highly exalted position to identify w/the plight of God's people & lead them to restoration. Both had prayerful dependence on God. He later becomes the Governor of Judah (Neh 10:1).

Matthew Henry - Introduction - his book continues the history of the children of the captivity, the poor Jews, that had lately returned out of Babylon to their own land. At this time not only the Persian monarchy flourished in great pomp and power, but Greece and Rome began to be very great and to make a figure. Of the affairs of those high and mighty states we have authentic accounts extant; but the sacred and inspired history takes cognizance only of the state of the Jews, and makes no mention of other nations but as the Israel of God had dealings with them: for the Lord's portion is his people; they are his peculiar treasure, and, in comparison with them, the rest of the world is but as lumber. In my esteem, Ezra the scribe and Nehemiah the tirshatha, though neither of them ever wore a crown, commanded an army, conquered any country, or was famed for philosophy or oratory, yet both of them, being pious praying men, and very serviceable in their day to the church of God and the interests of religion, were really greater men and more honourable, not only than any of the Roman consuls or dictators, but than Xenophon, or Demosthenes, or Plato himself, who lived at the same time, the bright ornaments of Greece. Nehemiah's agency for the advancing of the settlement of Israel we have a full account of in this book of his own commentaries or memoirs, wherein he records not only the works of his hands, but the workings of his heart, in the management of public affairs, inserting in the story many devout reflections and ejaculations, which discover in his mind a very deep tincture of serious piety and are peculiar to his writing. Twelve years, from his twentieth year (ch. 1:1) to his thirty-second year (ch. 13:6), he was governor of Judea, under Artaxerxes king of Persia, whom Dr. Lightfoot supposes to be the same Artaxerxes as Ezra has his commission from.

This book relates, I. Nehemiah's concern for Jerusalem and the commission he obtained from the king to go thither, ch. 1,2. II. His building the wall of Jerusalem notwithstanding the opposition he met with, ch. 3,4. III. His redressing the grievances of the people, ch. 5. IV. His finishing the wall, ch. 6. V. The account he took of the people, ch. 7. VI. The religious solemnities of reading the law, fasting, and praying, and renewing their covenants, to which he called the people (ch. 8-10). VII. The care he took for the replenishing of the holy city and the settling of the holy tribe, ch. 11,12. VIII. His zeal in reforming various abuses, ch. 13. Some call this the second book of Ezra, not because he was the penman of it, but because it is a continuation of the history of the foregoing book, with which it is connected (v. 1). This was the last historical book that was written, as Malachi was the last prophetic book, of the Old Testament.

Jamieson - Nehemiah the son of Hachaliah—This eminently pious and patriotic Jew is to be carefully distinguished from two other persons of the same name—one of whom is mentioned as helping to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem (Ne 3:16), and the other is noticed in the list of those who accompanied Zerubbabel in the first detachment of returning exiles (Ezr 2:2; Ne 7:7). Though little is known of his genealogy, it is highly probable that he was a descendant of the tribe of Judah and the royal family of David.

in the month Chisleu—answering to the close of November and the larger part of December.

Shushan the palace—the capital of ancient Susiana, east of the Tigris, a province of Persia. From the time of Cyrus it was the favorite winter residence of the Persian kings.

Nehemiah 1:2 that Hanani, one of my brothers, and some men from Judah came; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped and had survived the captivity, and about Jerusalem.

- Hanani (KJV): Ne 7:2
- I asked (KJV): Ps 122:6-9 Ps 137:5,6
- that had escaped (KJV): Ezr 9:8,9,14 Jer 44:14 Eze 6:9+ Eze 7:16+ Eze 24:26,27

that Hanani, one of my brothers, and some men from Judah came; and I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped and had survived the captivity, and about Jerusalem.

Nehemiah's brother Hanani (later mentioned in Neh 7:2) arrives from Judah with others. Nehemiah immediately asks about "the Jews who escaped, who had survived the exile" and about Jerusalem for his heart is with his homeland even though he's never lived there.

Ryrie - Hanani. Evidently a blood brother (7:2), he brought Nehemiah the report of conditions in Jerusalem due to the opposition recorded in Ezra 4:23-24.

Brian Bell - What does just this question already tell you about Nehemiah? He cared for both Gods people & Gods city (which he's never personally seen)

Matthew Henry - What a tribe Nehemiah was of does nowhere appear; but, if it be true (which we are told by the author of the Maccabees, 2 Maccabees 1:18) that he offered sacrifice, we must conclude him to have been a priest. Observe,

I. Nehemiah's station at the court of Persia. We are here told that he was in Shushan the palace, or royal city, of the king of Persia, where the court was ordinarily kept (v. 1), and (v. 11) that he was the king's cup-bearer. Kings and great men probably looked upon it as a piece of state to be attended by those of other nations. By this place at court he would be the better qualified for the service of his country in that post for which God had designed him, as Moses was the fitter to govern for being bred up in Pharaoh's court, and David in Saul's. He would also have the fairer opportunity of serving his country by his interest in the king and those about him. Observe, He is not forward to tell us what great preferment he had at court; it is not till the end of the chapter that he tells us he was the king's cup-bearer (a place of great trust, as well as of honour and profit), when he could not avoid the mentioning of it because of the following story; but at first he only said, I was in Shushan the palace. We may hence learn to be humble and modest, and slow to speak of our own advancements. But in the providences of God concerning him we may observe, to our comfort,

1. That when God has work to do he will never want instruments to do it with.
2. That those whom God designs to employ in his service he will find out proper ways both to fit for it and to call to it.
3. That God has his remnant in all places; we read of Obadiah in the house of Ahab, saints in Caesar's household, and a devout Nehemiah in Shushan the palace.
4. That God can make the courts of princes sometimes nurseries and sometimes sanctuaries to the friends and patrons of the church's cause.

II. Nehemiah's tender and compassionate enquiry concerning the state of the Jews in their own land, v. 2. It happened that a friend and relation of his came to the court, with some other company, by whom he had an opportunity of informing himself fully how it went with the children of the captivity and what posture Jerusalem, the beloved city, was in. Nehemiah lived at ease, in honour and fulness, himself, but could not forget that he was an Israelite, nor shake off the thoughts of his brethren in distress, but in spirit (like Moses, Acts 7:23+) he visited them and looked upon their burdens. As distance of place did not alienate his affections from them

(though they were out of sight, yet not out of mind), so neither did,

1. The dignity to which he was advanced. Though he was a great man, and probably rising higher, yet he did not think it below him to take cognizance of his brethren that were low and despised, nor was he ashamed to own his relation to them and concern for them.

2. The diversity of their sentiments from his, and the difference of their practice accordingly. Though he did not go to settle at Jerusalem himself (as we think he ought to have done now that liberty was proclaimed), but conformed to the court, and staid there, yet he did not therefore judge nor despise those that had returned, nor upbraid them as impolitic, but kindly concerned himself for them, was ready to do them all the good offices he could, and, that he might know which way to do them a kindness, asked concerning them. Note, It is lawful and good to enquire, "What news?" We should enquire especially concerning the state of the church and religion, and how it fares with the people of God; and the design of our enquiry must be, not that, like the Athenians, we may have something to talk of, but that we may know how to direct our prayers and our praises.

Jamieson - Hanani, one of my brethren, came, he and certain men of Judah—Hanani is called his brother (Ne 7:2). But as that term was used loosely by Jews as well as other Orientals, it is probable that no more is meant than that he was of the same family. According to Josephus, Nehemiah, while walking around the palace walls, overheard some persons conversing in the Hebrew language. Having ascertained that they had lately returned from Judea, he was informed by them, in answer to his eager enquiries, of the unfinished and desolate condition of Jerusalem, as well as the defenseless state of the returned exiles. The commissions previously given to Zerubbabel and Ezra extending only to the repair of the temple and private dwellings, the walls and gates of the city had been allowed to remain a mass of shattered ruins, as they had been laid by the Chaldean siege.

Nehemiah 1:3 They said to me, "The remnant there in the province who survived the captivity are in great distress and reproach, and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down and its gates are burned with fire."

- the province (KJV): Ne 7:6 Ne 11:3 Ezr 2:1 Ezr 5:8 Es 1:1⁺
- in great (KJV): Ne 9:36,37 Ps 44:11-14 Ps 137:1-3 Isa 32:9-14 La 1:7 La 3:61 La 5:1
- reproach (KJV): 1Ki 9:7⁺ Ps 79:4 Isa 43:28 Jer 24:9⁺ Jer 29:18⁺ Jer 42:18 Jer 44:8-12
- the wall (KJV): Ne 2:17 2Ki 25:10⁺ Isa 5:5⁺ Isa 64:10,11 Jer 5:10 Jer 39:8 Jer 52:14

They said to me, "The remnant there in the province who survived the captivity are in great distress and reproach, and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down and its gates are burned with fire."

The report is grim: the remnant in Jerusalem is "in great trouble and shame," and the city's wall is broken down, its gates burned. This likely refers to a relatively recent setback (possibly the failed rebuilding attempt recorded in Ezra 4:23), not merely the original 586 BC destruction decades earlier but the wound feels fresh and current.

Henry Morris - broken down. The wall of Jerusalem had apparently been at least partially built by Zerubbabel (Ezra 4:12; Ezra 5:3,8). Many years had passed, however, and the returning exiles had encountered continuing serious opposition from the people of the land, so their wall had fallen into decay by Nehemiah's time. Therefore Nehemiah sought and obtained approval to rebuild and finish the wall (Nehemiah 2:8).

Brian Bell - Why were broken down walls so important? I have a few broken boards in my cedar fence at home that need mending... but it's not the highest on my priority list. Un-walled cities in ancient times had no defense against enemies. They were thus dismissed as insignificant cities. So, for Jerusalem to lack walls was a disgrace to the city God has chosen. And it brought dishonor to the Lord. What the walls were to Jerusalem, are our lives are before God.

Is there any rebuilding/reconstruction needed in the walls of your life? Anything in your life left in ruins? - usually starts with a crack. Then a loose piece of stone or mortar. Then a hole. Next weeds of carnality start growing in there. Now, the enemy has gained access into your life. It's time to rebuild that wall in your life. It's a necessary hedge or wall of protection. A wall encloses: regarding purity Solomon says, a garden enclosed is my sister, my spouse, a spring shut up, a fountain sealed. A wall divides: its a protective & restrictive barrier that only you can set up in your life that help you to maintain your convictions. There are spiritual Hedges provided by God. Job 1:9,10 So Satan answered the LORD and said, Does Job fear God for nothing? Have You not made a hedge around him, around his household, and around all that he has on every side? Only if God lowers the hedge, and that for His own purposes, can disaster strike. There are spiritual Hedges we must plant/build. Prov. 25:28 Whoever has no rule over his own spirit Is like a city broken down, without walls.

III. The melancholy account which is here given him of the present state of the Jews and Jerusalem, v. 3. Hanani, the person he enquired of, has this character given of him (ch. 7:2), that he feared God above many, and therefore would not only speak truly, but, when he spoke of the desolations of Jerusalem, would speak tenderly. It is probable that his errand to court at this time was to solicit some favour, some relief or other, that they stood in need of. Now the account he gives is,

1. That the holy seed was miserably trampled on and abused, in great affliction and reproach, insulted upon all occasions by their neighbours, and filled with the scorning of those that were at ease.

2. That the holy city was exposed and in ruins. The wall of Jerusalem was still broken down, and the gates were, as the Chaldeans left them, in ruins. This made the condition of the inhabitants both very despicable under the abiding marks of poverty and slavery, and very dangerous, for their enemies might when they pleased make an easy prey of them. The temple was built, the government settled, and a work of reformation brought to some head, but here was one good work yet undone; this was still wanting. Every Jerusalem, on this side the heavenly one, will have some defect or other in it, for the making up of which it will required the help and service of its friends.

Nehemiah 1:4 When I heard these words, I sat down and wept and mourned for days; and I was fasting and praying before the God of heaven.

- I sat down (KJV): 1Sa 4:17-22⁺ Ezr 10:1 Ps 69:9,10 Ps 102:13,14 Ps 137:1 Da 9:3⁺ Zep 3:18⁺ Ro 12:15⁺
- the God (KJV): Ne 2:4 Ezr 5:11,12 Da 2:18⁺ Jon 1:9

GODLY GRIEF

When I heard these words, I sat down and wept and mourned for days; and I was fasting and praying before the God of heaven.

Nehemiah's response models godly grief: he weeps, mourns for days, fasts, and prays. He doesn't rush to action or complain BUT brings his distress to God first. This sets the emotional and spiritual tone for the whole book: crisis drives him to prayer, not panic.

Jamieson - The recital deeply affected the patriotic feelings of this good man, and no comfort could he find but in earnest and protracted prayer, that God would favor the purpose, which he seems to have secretly formed, of asking the royal permission to go to Jerusalem.

Knowing the Will of God Through Prayer and Fasting— Soon after Israel had invaded Palestine in the days of Joshua, the Israelites were tricked into signing an unscriptural peace treaty with a group of deceitful pagans. The cause for this tragic error is clearly stated in God's Word, "Then the men ... did not ask counsel of the Lord" (Jos9:14⁺). These pagans, the Gibeonites, brought only trouble to Israel. See Jos0:4–15; 2 Sa21:1–14⁺.

It therefore becomes immediately obvious that one of the most important factors in knowing God's will for our lives is to pray. "If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all liberally and without reproach, and it will be given to him" (James 1:5⁺). See also Ps143:8, 10; Ja4:2.

In the light of these passages it is evident a Christian must pray to know God's will. In other Bible verses fasting is linked with prayer.

Meaning of fasting: to fast is to abstain for a period of time from some important and necessary activity in our lives.

Purpose of fasting: this is done that we might spend that time in prayer before God.

Kinds of fasting: one may, for a time, refrain from sleep (2 Cor. 6:5⁺; 2 Cor 11:27⁺), marital sex (1 Co7:1–5⁺), or food (Matt. 4:1, 2⁺).

Ryrie - Nehemiah's prayer involved (1) pleading the lovingkindness of God (Heb., hesed; see note on Hos. 2:19); (2) confessing sin (notice that Nehemiah, like Ezra, 9:5-15, and Daniel, 9:3-19, identifies himself with his people); (3) acknowledging the rightness of God's judgment (on vv. 8-9, cf. Lev. 26:33-45⁺ and Deut. 30:1-5⁺); and (4) asking for success in the next step (which would require the king, this man of v. 11, to reverse the decision he had made as recorded in Ezra 4:21).

Examples of biblical fasting: Moses (Deut. 9:9, 18, 25–29⁺); Elijah (1 Kin. 19:8); Daniel (Dan. 9:3⁺; Dan 10:3⁺); Ezra (Ezra 10:6); Nehemiah (Neh. 1:4); and Paul (2 Cor. 6:5⁺; 2 Cor 11:27⁺).

Brian Bell - NEHEMIAH's CONTEMPLATION - He was immediately burdened...Distance didn't make a Difference. It was approx. 400 miles away. He was burdened for his city...are you for yours? He didn't say, hey Hanani (huh`NAY`nigh), not my problem! No, He turned tears into prayers. He turned from man to God. He prayed about this for 4 months (dates in Neb 1:1 & Neh 2:1; Dec.-April) Do we ever mourn for God's church today? Have we ever sat down, wept, mourned, prayed or fasted for the state of the Church? G. Cambell Morgan said, We should deal much more successfully with men if, like Nehemiah, we dealt more largely with God. Meet & conquer your enemies before you see them. (in prayer)

Matthew Henry - Fasting and Praying Thereupon Neh 1:4

IV. The great affliction this gave to Nehemiah and the deep concern it put him into, v. 4.

1. He wept and mourned. It was not only just when he heard the news that he fell into a passion of weeping, but his sorrow continued certain days. Note, The desolations and distresses of the church ought to be the matter of our grief, how much soever we live at ease.

2. He fasted and prayed; not in public (he had no opportunity of doing that), but before the God of heaven, who sees in secret, and will reward openly. By his fasting and praying,

(1.) He consecrated his sorrows, and directed his tears aright, sorrowed after a godly sort, with an eye to God, because his name was reproached in the contempt cast on his people, whose cause therefore he thus commits to him.

(2.) He eased his sorrows, and unburdened his spirit, by pouring out his complaint before God and leaving it with him.

(3.) He took the right method of fetching in relief for his people and direction for himself in what way to serve them. Let those who are forming any good designs for the service of the public take God along with them for the first conception of them, and utter all their projects before him; this is the way to prosper in them.

Nehemiah 1:5 I said, "I beseech You, O LORD God of heaven, the great and awesome God, who preserves the covenant and lovingkindness for those who love Him and keep His commandments,

- the great (KJV): Ne 4:14 De 7:21⁺ 1Ch 17:21⁺ Ps 47:2 Da 9:4-19⁺
- keepeth (KJV): Ex 20:6⁺ De 7:9⁺ 1Ki 8:23⁺ Heb 6:13-18⁺

I said, "I beseech You, O LORD God of heaven, the great and awesome God, who preserves the covenant and lovingkindness for those who love Him and keep His commandments - His prayer opens with worship, addressing "the LORD, the God of heaven, the great and awesome God." He grounds his appeal in God's character especially His covenant faithfulness ("steadfast love") toward those who love and obey him.

<Bible prayers> v5-11; Neh2:4 (Ge 15:2⁺; Hab 3:1⁺)

Brian Bell - NEHEMIAH PRAYER (Neh 1:5-11) We find here that he is a man of prayer (10 times in this book). The book starts & ends in prayer. It shows him praying day & night. (Neh 1:6) Prayer should be as natural to the believer as breathing. Did you know that our knees don't knock when we kneel on them? (Neh 1:5-11) What did Nehemiah think about his God? He believed in a Great God who...He believed in a great God who kept His promises (Neh 1:5,8,9) Jer.29:10 For thus says the LORD: After 70 years are completed at Babylon, I will visit you & perform My good word toward you, & cause you to return to this place.

Matthew Henry - With a Particular Account of His Prayer Neh 1:5-11

We have here Nehemiah's prayer, a prayer that has reference to all the prayers which he had for some time before been putting up to God day and night, while he continued his sorrows for the desolations of Jerusalem, and withal to the petition he was now intending to present to the king his master for his favour to Jerusalem. We may observe in this prayer,

I. His humble and reverent address to God, in which he prostrates himself before him, and gives unto him the glory due unto his name, v. 5. It is much the same with that of Daniel, ch. 9:4. It teaches us to draw near to God,

1. With a holy awe of his majesty and glory, remembering that he is the God of heaven, infinitely above us, and sovereign Lord over us, and that he is the great and terrible God, infinitely excelling all the principalities and powers both of the upper and of the lower world, angels and kings; and he is a God to be worshipped with fear by all his people, and whose powerful wrath all his enemies have reason to be afraid of. Even the terrors of the Lord are improvable for the comfort and encouragement of those that trust in him.

2. With a holy confidence in his grace and truth, for he keepeth covenant and mercy for those that love him, not only the mercy that is promised, but even more than he promised: nothing shall be thought too much to be done for those that love him and keep his commandments.

Nehemiah 1:6 let Your ear now be attentive and Your eyes open to hear the prayer of Your servant which I am praying before You now, day and night, on behalf of the sons of Israel Your servants, confessing the sins of the sons of Israel which we have sinned against You; I and my father's house have sinned.

- both I (KJV): 2Ch 28:10+ 2Ch 29:6+ Ps 106:6+ Isa 6:5+ La 5:7 Eph 2:3+ let Your ear now be attentive and Your eyes open to hear the prayer of Your servant which I am praying before You now, day and night, on behalf of the sons of Israel Your servants, confessing the sins of the sons of Israel which we have sinned against You; I and my father's house have sinned.

Nehemiah asks God to hear his prayer, made "day and night" for Israel. Crucially, he confesses sin — not just the nation's sins in the abstract, but includes himself and his family ("I and my father's house have sinned"). He specifically names the failure to keep God's commandments given through Moses. This is corporate confession with personal ownership, not self-righteous distancing.

BSB - Nehemiah combined active and determined leadership with a commitment to confession and prayer as he led the people in the aftermath of the cruel exile in Babylon (cf. 2:4; 4:4, 5, 9; 6:9, 14; 9:1-3; 13:14, 22, 29, 31). Although Nehemiah's confession was primarily for "the sins of the children of Israel," he expressed the confession in the first person: "which we have sinned against You."

Brian Bell - He believed in a great God to confess to & be forgiven by (Neh 1:6b,7) Just like Ezra, Nehemiah identifies himself with the sins & sorrows of the nation.

Matthew Henry - His general request for the audience and acceptance of all the prayers and confessions he now made to God (Neh 1:6): "Let thy ear be attentive to the prayer, not which I say (barely saying prayer will not serve), but which I pray before thee (then we are likely to speed in praying when we pray in praying), and let thy eyes be open upon the heart from which the prayer comes, and the case which is in prayer laid before thee." God formed the eye and planted the ear; and therefore shall he not see clearly? shall not he hear attentively?

III. His penitent confession of sin; not only Israel has sinned (it was no great mortification to him to own that), but I and my father's house have sinned, v. 6. Thus does he humble himself, and take shame to himself, in this confession. We have (I and my family among the rest) dealt very corruptly against thee, v. 7. In the confession of sin, let these two things be owned as the malignity of it—that it is a corruption of ourselves and an affront to God; it is dealing corruptly against God, setting up the corruptions of our own hearts in opposition to the commands of God.

Nehemiah 1:7 "We have acted very corruptly against You and have not kept the commandments, nor the statutes, nor the ordinances which You commanded Your servant Moses.

- dealt (KJV): Ne 9:29-35 Ps 106:6+ Da 9:5,6+

Matthew Henry - The pleas he urges for mercy for his people Israel.

1. He pleads what God had of old said to them, the rule he had settled of his proceedings towards them, which might be the rule of their expectations from him, v. 8,9. He had said indeed that, if they broke covenant with him, he would scatter them among the nations, and that threatening was fulfilled in their captivity: never was people so widely dispersed as Israel was at this time, though at first so closely incorporated; but he had said withal that if they turned to him (as now they began to do, having renounced idolatry and kept to the temple service) he would gather them again. This he quotes from Dt 30:1-5⁺, and begs leave to put God in mind of it (though the Eternal Mind needs no remembrancer) as that which he guided his desires by, and grounded his faith and hope upon, in praying this prayer: Remember, I beseech thee, that word; for thou hast said, Put me in remembrance. He had owned (Neh 1:7), We have not kept the judgments which thou commandedst thy servant Moses; yet he begs (Neh 1:8), Lord, remember the word which thou commandedst thy servant Moses; for the covenant is often said to be commanded. If God were not more mindful of his promises than we are of his precepts we should be undone. Our best pleas therefore in prayer are those that are taken from the promise of God, the word on which he has caused us to hope, Psa. 119:49⁺.

NEHEMIAH BEGINS HIS MODEL PRAYER

Remember the word which You commanded Your servant Moses, saying, ‘If you are unfaithful I will scatter you among the peoples;

Nehemiah appeals to God's own word (ALWAYS THE BEST PRACTICE), recalling the promise given through Moses (echoing Deuteronomy 30:1–5⁺ and Leviticus 26:1-46⁺): if Israel is unfaithful, they'll be scattered; but if they return to God and obey, He will regather them "from the farthest parts of the heavens" to the place He has chosen. Nehemiah prays God's promises back to Him giving us a model of prayer grounded in Scripture.

Brian Bell - In Neh 1:8,9 He reminds the Lord of His gracious promises. Not that God forgot, but the plea is to activate His Word.

Nehemiah 1:9 but if you return to Me and keep My commandments and do them, though those of you who have been scattered were in the most remote part of the heavens, I will gather them from there and will bring them to the place where I have chosen to cause My name to dwell.’

NEHEMIAH APPEALS TO GOD'S REPUTATION

They are Your servants and Your people whom You redeemed by Your great power and by Your strong hand

Nehemiah reminds God (and himself) that Israel is "your servants and your people," redeemed by God's own power ("great power and strong hand"). This is an appeal to God's reputation and prior redemptive work, not to Israel's merit.

Brian Bell - He believed in a great God who hears His people when they call out to Him (Neh 1:10,11) It seems like he's joined here by a little band of prayer warriors that saw & joined in on his prayer. (Neh 1:10) Here's how to grow a prayer meeting...pray till others are praying with you.

Matthew Henry - . He pleads the relation wherein of old they stood to God: "These are thy servants and thy people (v. 10), whom thou hast set apart for thyself, and taken into covenant with thee. Wilt thou suffer thy sworn enemies to trample upon and oppress thy sworn servants? If thou wilt not appear for thy people, whom wilt thou appear for?" See Isaiah 63:19. As an evidence of their being God's servants he gives them this character (v. 11): "They desire to fear thy name; they are not only called by thy name, but really have a reverence for thy name; they now worship thee, and thee only, according to thy will, and have an awe of all the discoveries thou art pleased to make of thyself; this they have a desire to do," which denotes,

(1.) Their good will to it. "It is their constant care and endeavour to be found in the way of their duty, and they aim at it, though in many instances they come short."

(2.) Their complacency in it. "They take pleasure to fear thy name (so it may be read), not only do their duty, but do it with delight." Those shall graciously be accepted of God that truly desire to fear his name; for such a desire is his own work.

3. He pleads the great things God had formerly done for them (v. 10): "Whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power, in the days of old. Thy power is still the same; wilt thou not therefore still redeem them and perfect their redemption? Let not those be overpowered by the enemy that have a God of infinite power on their side."

Lastly, He concludes with a particular petition, that God would prosper him in his undertaking, and give him favour with the king: this man he calls him, for the greatest of men are but men before God; they must know themselves to be so (Psa. 9:20), and others must know them to be so. Who art thou that thou shouldst be afraid of a man? Mercy in the sight of this man is what he prays for, meaning not the king's mercy, but mercy from God in his address to the king. Favour with men is then comfortable when we can see it springing from the mercy of God.

Nehemiah 1:11 "O Lord, I beseech You, may Your ear be attentive to the prayer of Your servant and the prayer of Your servants who delight to revere Your name, and make Your servant successful today and grant him compassion before this man." Now I was the cupbearer to the king.

- Let now (KJV): Ne 1:6 Ps 86:6 Ps 130:2
- who desire (KJV): Pr 1:29+ Isa 26:8,9 Heb 13:18+
- grant (KJV): Ne 2:8 Ge 32:11,28 Ge 43:14 Ezr 1:1 Ezr 7:6,27,28 Pr 21:1
- For I was (KJV): The office of cup-bearer was one of great trust, honour, and emolument, in the Persian court. To be in such a place of trust he must have been in the king's confidence; for no eastern potentate would have a cup-bearer to whom he could not trust his life, poison being often administered in that way. It was an office much desired, because it gave access to the king in those seasons of hilarity when men are most disposed to grant favours. Ne 2:1 Ge 40:2,9-13,21,23 Ge 41:9

O Lord, I beseech You, may Your ear be attentive to the prayer of Your servant and the prayer of Your servants who delight to revere Your name, and make Your servant successful today and grant him compassion before this man." Now I was the cupbearer to the king The "cupbearer" (cf. the "chief butler," Gen. 40:20, which uses the same Hebrew word) frequently enjoyed considerable influence. His duties of selecting and tasting the king's wine gave him constant access to the king.

Nehemiah asks for success in a specific, imminent moment: he requests favor "in the sight of this man," the king (Artaxerxes), since he served as the king's cupbearer. This final line reveals his position and sets up chapter 2, where he'll ask the king for permission to return and rebuild. The prayer moves from broad confession to a very concrete request, thus showing how private prayer prepares for a specific act of courage.

Jamieson on the cupbearer - This officer, in the ancient Oriental courts, was always a person of rank and importance; and, from the confidential nature of his duties and his frequent access to the royal presence, he possessed great influence.

Ryrie - The cupbearer tasted the king's wine to be certain it was not poisoned; thus he was a trusted servant who had frequent access to the king.

Chapter Summary - The chapter models a pattern from bad news to grief to prayer rooted in God's character and promises to honest confession to a bold, specific request. It sets up Nehemiah not as a priest or prophet, but as a layman in a secular job whom God uses because his heart is broken for God's people and city, and because he brings that burden to God before acting on it.

Brian Bell - At the end of Neh 1:11 we find a great prayer we can pray as we go forth into our daily calling, let Your servant prosper this day, I pray, & grant him mercy in the sight of this man. You've heard of the prayer of Jabez...this is the the Prayer of Nehemiah-bez. We all have an Artaxerxes (this man) to deal with on a daily basis, that we should be prepared (in prayer) to meet. Pray... but then be prepared to work. He was not content merely to get answers to prayer; he wanted to be an answer to prayer. (Warren Wiersbe, With the Word, pg. 264.) Alexander Whyte (Bible Characters of the OT & NT) wrote of Nehemiah, he will not begin till he has counted the cost & then he will not stop till he has finished the work. Many problems. A run down city. A weak nation. But one man made the difference

I read about David Livingstone. Scottish doctor, missionary, & explorer considered one of the most important European explorers of Africa in the early/mid 1800's. Latin grammar at age 10 in the machine shop. He originally wanted to become a missionary to China. Problems there, so he went to Africa. He saw something written on a map that grabbed his heart...written across the map of Africa from the middle to the far south...Unexplored Territory. One man that made an incredible difference. [maps/medicine/missions work] God is still seeking men & women willing to sacrifice to do his work. Are you available?

His sterling character stood the acid test, for he was a man of dependence upon God. And that's all you need to be, a man/women completely dependent on God...That's it...are you available? Here I am Lord, send me. For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show Himself strong on behalf of those whose heart is loyal to Him. 2 Chron.16:9 What steps can you take this week to strengthen your prayer life? Weep, Pray, & make yourself available.
